Mr. Randle was called to the chair and the presiding chairman, Mr. Edgington, referred to the late census, and Jeemed it desirable to take the scholastic census from the regular census reports. EDITOR AVALANCHE—I can congratulate you upon your return to your old correct position in politics again, the only position in which an independent paper is to be tolerated in the south—that of battling for the supremacy of the Democratic party. That party recognized our rights of property in our slaves, symputitized with us in the late war, and has steadily fought with us against any reconstruction in which the nexro was recognized; and we of the south were base ingrates indeed if we were not devoted to its triumph. The fact is, before we can expect the prosperity of the good old days before the war in the south, we must have the same homogeneity of public sendment. As regards questions relating to the negro, we must have but one party, and that the Democratic party. White men who dare to avow themselves here as Republicans should be promptly branded as the bitter and malliguant enemies of the south. The name of every northern man who, like Eaton and Bigelow, presumes in this community to aspire to office through Republican votes should be assurated with stench, we can spure all such, and would caution such as these who think of coming south to keep away. You, Mr. Editor, must hang out again your smallport flag and rid our community of such vermin. You may think me a little bold in using such language upon the anniversary of our flight from the yellow-lever in 1879. The north, to be sure, sent us some moner, but we soom the impuration of beggar, The north but returned a little of the money it stole from us during the war. Colonel Michole's Explanation, MEMPHIS, July 12, 188 EDITORS APPEAL—The greatest indignation prevails here among all our people in regard to a communication signed "Southern Democrat," which appeared in the Avalanche of yesterday morning, and to the sentiments of which communication the Avalanche made but a feeble attempt to differ, while it altogether failed to condemn. The following are some of the infamous expressions contained in the article, which were designed for effect in the northern States as the feelings of the solid routh for use in the Presidential campaign, as coming from a southern Democrat:

dential campaign, as coming from a southen Democrat:

White men who dare to avow themselves as Republicans should be promptly branded as the bliter and malignant enemies of the south, and the name of every northern man who presumes in this community to aspire to office through Republican votes, should be saturated with stench. The north, to be sure, sent us some money during the rellow-fever epidemit, but we scorn the imputation of begging.
The north but returned a little of the money it stole from us during the war.

The above is only a fair sample of the dirty communication in the Acaloache. This morning the county Democratic executive to committee went to the editor and demanded the name of the author of this vile, cowardly and malignant stander of Democrats here with a positive refusal. Mr. Nichols, the chief editor, said that the offensive article was not written by a Democrat, as the signature purported, but by a Republican, who designed it as a sarcasm on the Democratic party, and that he [Nichols] would so form an editerial for his paper of to-morrow morning. Republimans here have expressed profound indignation against the perpetrator of this outrage, and are ashamed that their party contains such an unprincipled follower.

GLEN HOUSE, N. Soon after starting from the summit the passengers discovered that the driver had been drinking while waiting for the party to descend. They left this wagon a short distance from the summit and walked to the half-way house, about four miles below, where one of the employes of the carriageroad company assured them that there was no bad place below that, and that he thought it would be safe for them to resume their seats with the driver who was with them. Soon after passing the half-way house, in driving around a curve too raway house, in driving around a curve too ra-pidly, the carriage was tipped over, throwing the occupants into the woods and on the rocks. National convention:

Makron, July 10, 1880.

Dear Sir-On the evening of the eighth of June last I had the honor to receive from you, in the presence of the committee of which you were chairman, the official announcement that the Republican National convention at Chicago had that day nominated me as their candidate for President of the United States. I accept the nomination with gratitude for the confidence it implies and with a deep sense of the responsibilities it imposes. I cordially indorse the principles set forth in the platform adopted by the convention. On nearly all the subjects of which it treats my opinions are on record among the published proceedings of congress. I venture, however, to make special mention of some of the principal topics which are likely to become subjects of discussion. Without reviewing the controversies which have been settled during the last make will never be realized until every voter can peetly and safely support any party no pipeases and the reducation, without which neither justice nor recedom can be permanently maintained. Its interests are intrusted to the States and to the votantary received and the permanently maintained. Its interests are intrusted to the States and to the votantary received in the states in supporting common schools; but it would be unjust to our people and dengerous to our institutions to apply any portion of the revergence of the control of the revergence o devices of a party to attract votes and carry an elec-tion. They are deliberate convictions resulting from a careful study of the spirit of our institutions, the events of our history and the best impulses of our people. In my judgment, these principles should control the legislation and administration of the government. In any event they will guide my conduct until experience points out a better way. If elected it will be my purpose to enforce strict obe-dience to the constitution and to the laws, and to promote, as best I may, the interest and bear of
